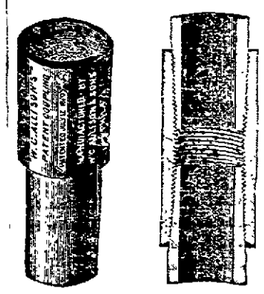
Tubing & Casing
Both Plain and Galvanized, for Oil and Salt Wells, American Charcoal Iron Boiler Tubes, Lap Welded Tubing for Steam and Water.



SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF
W. C. ALLISON'S
PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.
This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint; and the absence of a deep thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

The Effect of Jeff Davis' New Efforts.

From the New York Mail (neutral), May 20.

We leave it to partisan journals to exaggerate the importance of Mr. Davis' utterances on the one side or to diminish it on the other. The mere fact that he is reviving the great issue that we thought was settled by the war; that he is everywhere greeted by admiring crowds who respond to his most extreme views, and that not a dissenting voice seems to have been raised from among his listeners, seems to us to be sufficiently significant and threatening of evil, without any attempt to make it appear of greater importance than it is. Unless Mr. Davis is at once rebuked in plain language by the responsible leaders of Southern opinion, his speeches will inevitably create the impression that the war for the supremacy of the Union has been fought in vain, and that it is to be fought over again in politics. This state of sentiment we should regard as an unmixed calamity, and one which will yet cause every sane man in the South to lament the escape of Mr. Davis from his just dues at the hands of the executioner, as the direst misfortune that ever sprung from misdirected clemency.

Mambrino Bertie—Mr. Bonner's New Colt.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says: This young Kentucky trotter from near Lexington, Ky., arrived yesterday morning at the Empire stables, next to the Walnut Street House. He will remain there on exhibition during the day, prior to being shipped to New York.

Mr. Bonner, after careful examination of his shape, action and speed, pronounced him to be the most wonderful colt in the world; and purchased him from Dr. Herr at a very large price, which, by an agreement between the parties, must be kept a secret for the present. His two-year old performance stamps him as the swiftest trotter for his age ever raised in America. He trotted on the Buckeye Course last fall, on an unfavorable day, and rough track, a full mile in 2:42¼. He repeated it without being taken out of the harness in 2:44½, and in twenty minutes he trotted a two mile heat—the first mile in 2:41, and the second in 2:48½—without any apparent distress. This time is seventeen seconds faster than was ever before made by a two-year old on the trotting turf. He is an inbred Mambrino, and is the son of Dr. Herr's famous horse Mambrino Patchen, the full brother of the noted Lady Thorne. Mr. Bonner thought so highly of Mambrino Bertie, that he was unwilling to leave the Blue Grass country until he had secured this colt from Dr. Herr, to become a stable companion for Dexter and Pocahontas, and the other trotters that make his stables the most famous in America.

From the Correspondence of Wilkes' Spirit.

Mr. Bonner first subjected the colt to a very critical examination. His eyes and fingers searched for blemishes in vain. From his ears to his shoes he is sound. His spirit is as elastic as the unbroken colts in the field, and his coat as glossy as if the want of perfect condition had never been known. This examination by Robert Bonner vindicates my assertion that Mambrinos at least can be trained by competent men—like Dr. Herr—at a very tender age without any serious detriment to their constitutions. The colt started off with his natural stride—free, easy, elastic; no evidence of being tied up, or, on the contrary, no disposition to break, although in his quiet, game way he was coaxing on the bit for his liberty to work up his winged speed, of the possession of which, like all fast trotters, he seems to be fully conscious.

When we remember that Mambrino Bertie is not three years old till next month, and that no one has been more accustomed to speed among the twenties than the owner of Dexter, it takes away the seeming extravagance of his telegram, that "Bertie is the most extraordinary colt I have ever seen." His speed is inexplicably wonderful. His stride at full speed, by actual measurement, was found to be nineteen feet, yet his legs are brought well up under his body at every revolution, which shows that his muscular power to gather as well as to stride is absolutely enormous.

Mr. Bonner justly says: "I never saw a horse that trotted with as much ease." His temper is as quiet as Herzog's in his best condition. Young as he is, even a running horse at his side in full motion never disturbs him.

From the start he has but one motion, and that is a clean, square trot. Slow or fast, it is always the same; no irregularities, no hitching, no dragging of either hind leg, no forcible kr ee-action or striking-stifle demonstration, but every movement a graceful curve—the hind legs widening just enough to pass his front feet, the head and body steady in a line, and the stride showing the uniform precision of an accurately adjusted piece of human machanism.

As he increases his speed, of course his movements become more rapid, but there is no other change. His body never labors. Although it sinks in proportion to his speed, it never struggles, but remains perfectly level and steady. His neck and head only seem to straighten out like a wild swan's enjoying his swiftest flight.

The Strawberry Trade.

THE MANNER IN WHICH THE FRUIT IS PICKED, SENT TO THE MARKET, AND SOLD—PROSPECTS OF THE SEASON.

From the N. Y. Times.

The present year has brought us strawberries more diverse parts of the country than has ever before come to the New York market. Sections which, thirty years ago, were as far removed as China is in this generation, have proved formidable rivals to the growers in the immediate neighborhood, in furnishing the Metropolis with supplies of this quickly-perishing delicacy. The first out-of-door grown strawberries this year came to the city from Charleston, S. C., during the latter part of March. The shipment consisted of but ten quart boxes, which were readily sold at two dollars apiece. Then followed larger shipments from the same place, with reduced prices, so that in the first week in April they had declined to seventy-five cents per quart. Soon after this berries began to arrive from Norfolk, Va., from Maryland, and, later still, from Delaware, and for more than a month the Southern steamers and railways have been loaded with crates of berries, sent to supply the omnivorous demands of this city. The strawberries in the central and northern parts of New Jersey are just now beginning to come in, but the want of rain has forced the season there, and also in the northern parts of our own State and in Connecticut, from whence the last supplies are drawn; so that without there is a very great change in the weather the strawberry season will come, in a week or two more, to a very sudden ending. Throughout the country the dry weather has greatly affected the size and quality of the berry. In order to be large and luscious, it is necessary that the strawberry should have a very great deal of moisture, and on account of being deprived of this, even the best specimens in our markets have been small and dry; and the whole crop only half as large as was anticipated in the winter.

In the cultivation of this fruit, the State of Delaware has this year surpassed any other in the Union, both in respect to quality and quantity. The land seems especially adapted for the purpose, and the price the growers have obtained has been better than that received by the producers in any other section. One day last week 250,000 quarts of strawberries left Wilmington on one train for this city and the steamer which runs between this place and the different ports in that State has several times brought almost as large a quantity. The farms on which strawberries are raised for shipment devote a certain section of land to that purpose varying in size from a half to ten acres, few using more than the latter amount. When the strawberries begin to ripen they employ men, women and children to pick, paying them from two to four cents a quart for their labor. This may seem a small amount, but an active man or woman can earn in eight hours—from 6 in the morning until 2 in the afternoon, the time during which the picking generally takes place—more than $2, if paid at the lowest rate.

In picking, great care has to be used not to touch the berry, but to break off the stem as near to it as possible, for if the fruit is pressed with the fingers it is very apt to decay; and large shipments have been lost from this cause. When from five to six quarts have been picked they are carried to the house where the packing is done. On some farms the baskets in which the berries are shipped are also used for picking, and when the picker has filled one of these he "faces" himself—that is, scatters a few large berries on the top of the others—but where different baskets are used for picking this is generally done where the packing takes place. The baskets in which the berries are placed for transportation are of several kinds, almost all of them made in Connecticut. The best ones are round, with many open slits in the sides, so that the contents may be well ventilated, and when packed in the crates, as they are larger at the top than at the bottom, allow the air to circulate freely through them. The crates are also open enough to allow plenty of air, though care is taken in their construction to make them so as to prevent dust from getting into the fruit. These crates are of different sizes. Some containing only twenty-four quart baskets, and others as many as sixty. The larger crates cost about $2.20, and the quart baskets from three to four cents each. After being packed these crates are allowed to lie in a cool place for some hours, and late in the afternoon are sent to the railroad or to the steamer for shipment. In Delaware the fruit train is generally made up at Wilmington, from the cars coming in from the different points, and traveling on through the night, arrives in Jersey City at about five in the morning. The trains and boats from different parts of New Jersey arrive as early as three or four o'clock in the morning, and as the fruit is instantly taken to New York, the hours in which the greater part of the strawberry business is transacted are from five to seven a. m. Then it is that the provision dealers from all parts of the city congregate in the vicinity of Washington Market, where the houses of most of the commission merchants to whom the fruit is consigned are located, in order to make their purchases for the day. The scene is one of great interest as the different stores are filled with early-risers, who, as fast as they make their purchases carry them away up-town, so that the housekeeper, who comes leasurely down-town at 8 or 9 o'clock, and goes to Washington Market in the hope of getting nice, fresh fruit, only finds that part which the provision dealers have left, and would generally be able to make a much better selection in many of the up-town stores. Of course it often happens that there is a large quantity of fruit left on the commission merchants' hands, and as the sales are wholly made by commission, it is impossible to throw away any of the fruit, and thus ease the market; so, unless it is utterly worthless, all has to be sold for what it will bring; and on this account the price of superior fruit is often seriously affected.

The purchasers of these damaged lots are generally the men who peddle it out in wagons through the streets. They often buy a crate of berries as low as from twenty-five to fifty cents, and then overhaul it, selecting what can in any possibility be sold, and throwing the rest away. One of the large dealers in Washington Market said that their was thousands of dollars' worth of this kind of fruit sold there every year to these men. The species of strawberry being now almost universally used in this market is the Wilson, which, on account of its toughness, can stand an amount of wear in transporting which would wholly destroy some of the finer-textured strawberries.

Formerly one might see many bright little strawberries, called Scotch Runners, and the delicate tints of the stately Jucunda or darker Barnes Manor, in the market. But now these are rarely met with. Both the expense of raising them, and the difficulty of disposing of them after bringing them to the city, has deterred farmers from planting, or induced those who had planted to change to the more hardy but less palatable Wilsons. A small, sweet berry, called the Stewart, is sold to restaurant-keepers for the purpose of making "strawberry shortcake;" but as this is an inferior grade, it is not very extensively cultivated. The price of good strawberries Saturday morning at wholesale was twenty-five cents per quart, though some of the better class of Delaware fruit sold as high as thirty-five cents. It is impossible to say whether or not the price will be lower before the season closes, though the continuance of hot weather may produce a general ripening, and in that way glut the market.

The Democratic Boss.

The most gorgeous wedding ever seen in this country was that of Boss Tweed's daughter the other day in New York. Tweed has made his money out of politics, as one of the Tammany Ring, and Democratic managers. The presents on the occasion amounted to nearly a million dollars. Tweed was very vain of the affair, and gives it all publicity. He is the "rising sun" of the Democracy and of course has no end of satellites. But how the bankrupt shatmaker of a few years ago became the millionaire of to-day is a suggestive question. But after all what real respect is felt for a man who has acquired wealth as Tweed has? The Democratic prints are never tired of ringing the changes on the presents to General Grant. As a patriot and great soldier, simple in his habits, humble in his means, and of transcendant service to the Republic in her extremity, General Grant has been the recipient of many testimonials of esteem What has Tweed done? Whom has he served or saved and enriched but himself and friends, and followers? If Tweed is the great mogul of the Democracy of this country, the creator of Presidents and Governors and Mayors, and the virtual ruler of the State of New York, the country ought to have this spectacle of his wealth before them, and be fully posted of the character of the man. He is the King of the Spoils party, and when he spends his money so lavishly the people will ask themselves how he came by it. Thus the Brooklyn Eagle, a leading Democratic journal, says:

The public sidewalk, from the curbstone to the door of the Fifth Avenue, one of the bride's parents' domiciles, was sheltered by an awning and covered by Brussels carpet, as is the habit in London and Paris, when monarchs and nobles receive their guests on state occasions. The expense and amount of the whole affair is that the Tweeds have the disposition to imitate the parade and ostentation of the Old World aristocracy; and that they have acquired the wealth to fully equal the utmost luxury and pomp of the class they imitate. When the ordinary observer sees this profusion of personal expenditure, though it be none of his business, he cannot fail to inquire whence came the wealth thus lavished? Was it ancestral accumulation or gigantic mercantile investment that contributed the vast possessions of which such cogent public evidence is afforded? In the case of Mr. Tweed, it was notoriously neither worth inherited, nor private business, that made the millions. They were made in politics by a few short years' occupancy of moderately salaried offices. The fact is patent. Now, if Astor, who inherited his millions, or Stewart, who, by personal skill and devotion in business, made his, were to make such a display at a relatives wedding as Senator Tweed made yesterday, many people would enviously call it vulgar vanity, and others would say that any man who honestly possessed, or had earned, the wealth of a great nabob, had a right to spend it with a nabob's ostentation. We incline to the latter opinion. If a man has lots of money, he has a right to spend it as fast and freely as he likes, so long as he breaks no law. He may have an account to settle with his conscience, if he does not spend it usefully; he may err against the standard of good taste, as well as against the dictates of patriotism, if he set an example of reckless extravagance; but so long as he can afford to outlay, and it is not illegal or directly immoral, it is his own business alone whether he chooses to incur it. Any other man, however, is as free to talk about the way the money goes and where it came from, as the millionaire is to spend it. When a man spreads a Brussels carpet and stretches a silken awning across the public sidewalk, and exhibits half a million dollars' worth of jewelry to the reporters to be catalogued and commented on in the newspapers, he not only admits but admits public attention to the fact of his enormous wealth, and to the minor facts of how he got it and what he is going to do with it. The public, therefore, are not only entitled to discuss the Tweed millions, but are even implored and requited to do so by their owner's own public and personal action on the occasion of his daughter's nuptials.

THE CALIFORNIA DEATER.—Two or three months ago Mr. Leland Stanford, of Sacramento, discovered accidentally that he owned a fast horse. Up to the 1st of April no suspicion of speed had attached to the obscure animal, but some time during that month he was tried on the Sacramento Park Course, and proved himself to be one of the fastest, if not the very fastest trotter in the world, so far as heard from. His first half mile he made in 1:07, and a few minutes afterward he made another in 1:07½. This, for a horse that had never been trained, is a wonderful performance, and marks the unnamed steed as a marvel of readiness on the hoof.

It was thought by many that Robert Bonner would go for the Stanford horse, but the immortal Leiger man's eyes had been fixed upon the Kentucky colt, Mambrino Bertie, which he has lately added to his stud. A number of stock-owners, including Governor Odin Bowie, of Maryland, have made offers for the new wonder, but Mr. Stanford has thus far refused to sell. Two or three days ago Frank S. Smith of the New York Weekly, offered $20,000 by telegraph, and on being answered in the negative at once secured the services of a well-known horse trainer and sent out for California overland, with the intention of testing the powers of the Stanford horse, and, if satisfied, of purchasing him at any price. It is said that Mr. Stanford has already been offered $40,000 for the animal by a company of sporting gentlemen in this city.

If you want to know whether you would succeed on a farm, see whether you take kindly to the outdoor exercise about your homestead. If you take more rural pleasure in looking on than in lifting your hand and bending your back about your house, you had better not retire till you can play boss altogether. Keep the lawn well rolled and cut, make your garden and weed it yourself, keep the walks clear of grass, water the flower-beds and shrubs, and bring the water from a distance, and follow it up, and like it, and you may do. You cannot "play" farmer unless you have a good bank account.

There is an ice factory in New Orleans which turns out sixteen tons of ice per day, running six machines, which cost $25,000 in gold. The water is pumped up from the Mississippi, purified and frozen into blocks about two feet long, a foot wide, and three inches thick. These works were established in 1866.

Notes of the Day.

The bonded warehouse of Charles McMichen, No. 69 Greenwich street, New York, is said to be the only store of that kind in the city which has a burglar alarm and the gong thereto attached can be heard a distance of about two blocks on a still night. On Sunday evening this gong was heard by the policeman on that post, ringing furiously, and the officer, assuming that burglars were on the premises, sounded the alarm, caused the building to be surrounded to prevent the escape of the supposed burglars, and then hastened to the barge office at Whitehall for a key with which to open the warehouse door. No key could be procured, but authority was given to break open the door, and at it the officers went with crowbars and sledge hammers. After some moments' labor the Custom House padlock was broken off and the door opened, when it was ascertained, to the supreme disgust of all concerned, that the alarm had been sounded by a cat, which had effected an entrance and, in the course of her perambulations, had come in contact with one of the wires which set the gong ringing. The warehouse was closed and a new lock applied.

The mercantile importance of little things is shown very clearly by the present condition of the shoe button trade. Those buttons are made of papier mache by a single firm in Paris. Formerly used for trousers' pockets, they were sold in large quantities to tailors. The style changed, and tailors gladly sold the buttons for 70 cents per gross. The war broke out, and the price rapidly rose to $1 and $1.25 a gross. Tailors who still had a stock on their shelves, buried beneath the accumulated dust of months, hastened with celerity to sell them and secure the profits. Then they rose to $1.75 and $2 a gross, and the same tailors are groaning at their folly. The buttons sell now for $2.75 a gross, and are hardly anywhere to be bought. On this small article alone many a fortune has been made.

It is proposed, now that San Francisco is connected with Australia by a steamer line, to open offices in London, where a traveler may purchase through tickets across the Atlantic, the continent of North America and to Australia, with sleeping car accommodations from New York to San Francisco, and thus draw in this direction the immense amount of travel between England and Australia. Five and a half millions of dollars were spent last year for first class passenger fares between England and Australia, and 60,000 persons made the journey, one way or the other. Our railroad companies believe they can, by proper management, control this passenger traffic.

The biggest duck ever seen is the bird called by Captain Cook's expedition "the racehorse," and found in the region of South Carolina about the Straits of Magellan. Dr. Cunningham, naturalist, describes one of these birds as 40 inches in length from the tip of the beak to the tip of the tail. It weighed 12 pounds; but Cook mentions one weighing 29 pounds. Its wings are too small and weak for flight, so it uses them as paddles, and, with the aid of its strong webbed feet, attains a speed through the water of from 12 to 15 miles an hour, whence one of its names, "the steamer duck."

They have a bread controversy in Washington City. Some weeks ago fault was found with the bakers for raising the price of bread; and, a practical baker taking the ground that bread could be made for five cents a loaf, while others claimed that it could not, to settle the matter it was arranged that three barrels of flour should be purchased and baked at the government bakery, the officer in charge to be the arbiter. The result was a yield of 260 pound loaves of bread to the barrel of flour, costing $1.75 per barrel. This, it is stated, is at variance with the past experience of the Washington bakers, who have not been able to obtain more than 250 pound loaves from the barrel in the regular course of business.

A recent writer says that the fences of the United States have cost more than all the craft that float in our waters, salt and fresh; more, indeed than any other class of property except railroads.

Remarkable Surgical Operation.

ENGRAFTING RAT SKIN ON A MAN'S HIP.

From the Louisville Ledger.

We hear of a somewhat novel surgical operation recently performed by Dr. E R Hawn, of Leavenworth, Indiana. A young man named Murchison, living in Meade county, Ky., met with a terrible accident while working in a saw mill, by means of which a piece of skin as large as the bottom of a tin cup was torn from his hip. Dr. Hawn was called to the case. Knowing the extreme difficulty experienced by surgeons in getting injuries of the kind to heal properly, the doctor was at a loss how to proceed. It is well known that where a large surface of skin has been removed the cure is tedious and difficult to accomplish. Nothing but skin will produce new skin, and the exposed surface will not heal further than an inch from the margin, after which the edges must be trimmed again and a new growth started, the operation being repeated as often as necessary, until the entire surface is covered and the cure effected. Not wishing to subject his patient to this painful process, Dr. H. resolved to try the experiment of engrafting. His first idea was to take small bits of skin from various parts of the body and graft them on the exposed surface, but the patient objected on account of the pain attending the skinning process, and multitude of small sore places which would be left. The doctor then suggested that a portion of the skin of some inferior animal might be used, and the patient readily consented. A rat, about two-thirds grown, was caught, killed and quickly skinned, after which the doctor cut a piece of the required size, trimmed it to suit the exposed surface, clapped it on, and fastened it with strips of adhesive plaster, after which the whole surface was covered with a solution of collodion. The experiment succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations. The graft took by first intention, and in ten days the cure was complete.

Plaintiff testified that Brignale was engaged for last season as manager of opera in Chicago, that the venture failed and Brignale paid him nothing. The defence was that Brignale had an understanding with Grau that he was to be paid nothing until Brignale made $500 a week profit, which sum was never realized. Verdict for plaintiff.

Our London Petroleum Report

Partly owing to the absence of important arrivals, more firmness has been apparent in the trade for American refined, and a large business has been done, both for present and forward delivery, at an advance or 4@6d per gallon, prices in the former position at the close being 1s 3d for standard and prime white, and in the latter 1s 6½d to 1s 6¾d with most importers demanding 1s 6½d Petroleum spirit, however, has not in the least shared in this improvement, and continues of heavy sale on low terms—viz, 8½@9d per gallon. Refined oil oil remains steady in price, with a fair business doing, both by the trade and exporters.

California papers tell of a man who, having lost a considerable portion of his nose in a fight, picked up the severed part and put it in his pocket, and subsequently, having gone home and bandaged what was left, put on his best suit and started for a surgeon. When the doctor was ready to reunite the separated parts, he called for the piece, and the mutilated man, to his horror, found that he had left it at home, and, after searching vainly in all his pockets, said, "I beg your pardon, doctor; it is a rough joke on me, but I left my nose at home in the other vest."

GAMBLING is now taught openly on one of our principal streets. Last evening a young man opened a "shebang" in the Commercial Block. The plan of operations is to sell the customer a bottle of perfumery or a box of candy, attached to which is a sealed envelope containing a number selected from 1 to 21. If the number be correctly guessed the "banker" gives $2 50. If the buyer elects to take his chances on two guesses at the number, and is successful, he receives but $1 25. The difference between this plan and that of a faro bank is a bottle of perfumery or a trifle of candy. In this way our young boys are initiated into the mysteries of gambling. If one of them wins $2 50 every one of his comrades is tempted to invest his fifty cents. Does our city license such places? If they do, is the money received an equivalent for the demoralization that must necessarily be the result?

A WOULD-BE SUICIDE.—A young woman about 25 years of age, living in rooms over Magaley's liquor store on the corner of Franklin and Water streets, attempted to commit suicide last evening, by swallowing an ounce of laudanum. She told a companion who lives in the house, that she was tired of life, and had nothing to live for, as the fellow who kept her for the last year had deserted and gone back on her. She then went out to Abbott & Allen's drug store and purchased a small bottle of laudanum. When she came back she said good bye to her companion and immediately swallowed about an ounce of the poison. Dr. Barr was immediately sent for. Upon his arrival an emetic had to be forced down her throat and in half an hour all danger was over.

JOHN KNOX, a printer, age 40, committed suicide last Friday, in the city hospital at Hartford, Conn., by cutting his throat. Mr. Knox worked in the HERALD office from June 7 to August 13, last year. He subsequently had a situation in the Courier office, working there from about Christmas till a few days after the murder of Wm. H. Wisner. It was with Knox that the murdered man held a prolonged conversation in Mr. Christopher's saloon, the evening of the murder. Mr. Knox was kind-hearted and generous, a good printer, but of intemperate habits. During the war he enlisted in a rebel cavalry company at Memphis, and was captured at Corinth and then came North. He probably was laboring under a temporary insanity when he took his life.

Now that poor Knox is dead possibly some one may charge him with having been the murderer of Wisner. But nobody but a lunatic or a fool would be guilty of such an accusation.

NOTA BENE.—Any Titusville newspapers that may have fallen into the disreputable practice of garbling our Variety paragraphs, watering-place notes, etc., and presenting them to their own readers at second-hand, are requested to send over a bushel basket, and we will fill it occasionally without extra charge. If we are required to edit both newspapers, we prefer to do it in our own way, and not have our copy mutilated in its transmission to our second edition.

DEATH OF ARMAND JINNEY.—Armand Jinney, a young man employed in the Petroleum Iron Works, died yesterday, after about a week's illness. The cause of his death is attributed to the bursting of a blood-vessel. By some accident, while at work, a monkey wrench slipped from his hands and struck him a severe blow in the side. He took to his bed and continued to grow steadily worse, the physicians being unable to give any relief. The deceased was nineteen years of age, a very steady, industrious mechanic, and one who enjoyed the respect and confidence of his fellow-workmen in an unusual degree. His funeral will take place at 9:30 o'clock to-day, from his late residence, on East Mechanic street. The Fire Department are invited to attend.

EXTRAORDINARY TENACITY OF STEEL.—A pair of Jessup steel 2-inch jars, made for a 5-inch hole, and manufactured by the firm of Bryan, Dillingham & Co., were yesterday withdrawn from the McCracken well by pole tools, having been stuck there for some time. Upon reaching the surface they were discovered to be twisted, without the slightest break, into a perfect screw. This shows the wonderful tenacity of the metal, and the excellence of the workmanship. They will remain permanently on exhibition in front of the office of Bryan, Dillingham & Co.

THE BLACK CROOK TO-NIGHT.—This grand spectacular drama will be presented in fine style at the Parshall Opera House, this evening, for the first time in our city. Reserved seats can be secured at Booth & Sargent's music store. Mr. Meech has spared no expense or labor to give our citizens a superb treat. In all the cities where the Black Crook has been presented by this company it has been received with great favor.

FALSE REPORT—A report was in circulation yesterday that the U. & T. Railroad had been sold out to the Oil Creek, or Penn. Central. We are authorized by some of the officers of the road to say that the report has no foundation in fact.

The Races.

FIRST DAY—THE ATTENDANCE—GOOD ORDER, ETC.

Yesterday was ushered in by Old Sol with all his warmth of feeling, his scorching rays searching even the coolest of places. Although there was a good breeze blowing at intervals during the day, its usual beneficial results were more than counterbalanced by the quantity of dust it kept in motion, which hung like a fog over the roads leading to the track, and as impenetrable to the sight. Conveyances of every description were brought into requisition to transport passengers to and from the grounds, and at an early hour in the afternoon Spring street was thronged with vehicles and pedestrians wending their way through the dust to the grounds.

Upon reaching the grounds the crowd scattered in all directions seeking a covering. Everything that cast a shadow over the heated ground, even from a railing post to a wagon hub, was eagerly sought. The shrubbery at the lower end of the grounds afforded shade to some; but we noticed that the bulk of the crowd had wandered to a long shed near the quarter pole, where Ben Ridley was dealing out ice water to the thirsty pleasure seekers.

The grand stand was full, and the ladies turned out in good numbers to grace the sport with their presence, and lend encouragement to the contestants by their handsome faces and modest cheers.

The best of order prevailed, and it was particularly noticed that there was no boisterous noise more than the general acclamations of applause as the horses crossed the string on the finish.

Both races were very exciting and interesting in the closeness with which they were contested, and it seemed to be the general expressed opinion that they were remarkably free from any attempt at jockeying or fouling. The decisions in all cases were fair and impartial and elicited the approbation and applause of every one present.

THE FIRST RACE

was a three minute trotting race for a purse of $450; first horse to receive $200, second $125, third $75, and the fourth $50. Mile heats, three best in five to harness, open to all horses that had never beaten three minutes. There were nine entries, but two of the horses, "Annie" and "Sam" did not come to time and the first start was made with seven. The following is a list of the starters and their positions:

M. V. Moore g. g. Mac.
G. C. Shadburn enters b. m. Titusville.
A. Spencer enters g. m. Mattie.
R. Rogers enters b. g. William.
W. H. Crawford enters s. g. Sorrel Dan.
C. F. Cole enters b. m. Jenny Lind.
C. F. Dunbar enters b. m. Lady Hill.

First Heat—At 2 40 the horses came up to the scratch handsomely, and had a capital send-off, but had scarcely passed the stand when "Sorrel Dan" commenced acting badly as if his bit hurt him, holding his head to one side. He recovered himself, however, before reaching the quarter pole. Mattie had the lead on the first half, passing the quarter pole in 41½. Lady Hill broke badly on the first quarter, but got into shape again as she came up the half-mile stretch. In the meantime Sorrel Dan had taken the lead on the last quarter, pushed hard behind by Lady Hill, and on the home stretch it was "nip and tuck" between Dan and the Lady. Dan crossed the string only a head in advance of the Lady, winning the heat. Mattie came close after, followed by Titusville and Mack, William bringing up the rear. Time 2:45¼.

Second Heat—In this heat Jennie Lind changed drivers. Some difficulty was experienced in getting started, the horses being called back four times before a start was effected. On the fifth trial they got the word "go" and Dan led the van, passing the quarter pole in 40 and the half in 1:20, but was dropped by William who took the lead and won the heat by hard scratching, Sorrell Dan second, Titusville third, Jennie Lind fourth, and Lady Hill fifth. Mack and Mattie were distanced. Time, 2:41¼.

Third Heat—Mattie and Mack being distanced in the last heat, only five came up to the string. The horses got a good send-off, Lady Hill leading, followed close by William, and both passed the first quarter in 42. Lady Hill kept the lead, making the first half in 1:22½, and winning the heat easily, slacking up as she went under the string, William, Jennie Lind, and Titusville following, and Dan bringing up the rear. Time, 2:47½.

Fourth Heat.—Another good send-off signalized the start, but Dan took the lead at the stand and maintained it to the end. At the quarter pole he was three or four lengths ahead. He made the first half in 1:22. Dan won the heat easily, Lady Hill coming in second, Jennie Lind third, Titusville fourth, and William fifth. Time, 2.48.

Fifth Heat—Another good start was effected, Dan taking the lead again and keeping it easily until coming up the home stretch, when the driver of Lady Hill pushed her and she came in lapping on Dan. The last quarter was a pulling one for Dan, but he managed to win by a neck. Lady Hill, second; William, third; Titusville, fourth; and Jennie Lind, fifth. Time, 2.43.

The following is the SECOND RACE.

This was a running race for a purse of $200; first horse, $100; second horse, $60, and third $40. Half mile and repeat, catch weights. Open to all.

Boaster did not put in an appearance. The following were the positions for starting.

First Heat—Ida took the lead and kept it to the finish, the Gray Squirrel pressing the little mare close, Lady Brown and Bob Craig stretching along a few lengths behind, and Barrister taking all their dust. The heat was won by Ida. Time, 54 sec.

Second Heat—After a good deal of difficulty in getting the horses together, they at last got off, Grey Squirrel in the lead, but followed hard by all, and on the first turn the horses were all huddled in a heap and it was difficult to distinguish them in the dust. As they passed the quarter pole it was hard to decide which was ahead, but as they came up to the home-stretch Lady Brown pulled ahead of the Grey Squirrel, and as they went under the string the Lady showed daylight between her and the Squirrell, winning the heat in 53¾ sec.

Third Heat—Ida had this heat all her own way after rounding the lower turn, and crossed the string in 52½ sec. and winning the heat and race, Lady Brown second, Gray Squirrell third, Bob Craig fourth, Barrister fifth, Bay Gelding sixth.

This heat was very exciting but not as close as the preceding one.

The following is the summary:

As we close our report a light rain is falling, which will settle the dust beautifully and make the day a delightful one. We advise all to witness the races to-day.

Varieties.

—That beer garden on Franklin street has been refitted with sawdust and shade trees, and is ready for summer business. The old pewter pitcher that flew around so lively a few days since has been soldered up and is in condition for future skirmishes.

—The race track needs sprinkling badly, the dust last evening being so thick as to partially obscure the marvelous time made by the fast trotters.

—Our citizens are getting ready for the Holliday Dam season, and summer sports at the sea side. A car load of trunks were unloaded before Kron's establishment, varying in price from sixty cents to sixty dollars, and from the size of a collar box to an Italian villa pig pen with bay window extension. Those who possess more clothes than they can wear should buy one of these trunks.

—The city is filled with horsemen, horse talk is heard on the street corner, and horse laughs on every side. To-day some lively trotting may be expected.

—A new bridge is wanted on Franklin street over Church Run, and a petition is being circulated to that effect.

—Now that the "gel-orious Fourth" is approaching, would it not be well to resurrect that cast iron bull-dog of war that was wont bark on celebration days, but which for the past year has been buried in the mud of Franklin street, near the cemetery? Dig up the "Babymaker"!

—The Portland fire bug has an emulator at Rouseville who sets fire to oil tanks and wells. If the owners of the wells catch the cus-tomer he will not, like Nero, get a chance to look on and fiddle while they are burning.

Steam Fire Engines.

OFFICE OF THE CLAPP & JONES MANUFACTURING CO.,
HUDSON, N. Y., March 28, 1871.

To the Silsby Manufacturing Co., Seneca Falls, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN—As there seems to be a little difference of opinion between us as to which company builds the best steam fire engine, and for the purpose of allowing committees, who are about to purchase, the opportunity of judging of the merits of rotary and piston engines when working side by side, we hereby challenge you to meet us in trial in the city of Titusville on the 4th day of July, 1871, or any day following that you may desire.

We will work our second class engine, weighing 5,700 pounds, against any engine you build that will not weigh over 6,000 pounds.

FIRST TEST.—Work through 1,000 feet of hose, 1¼ nozzle. Time of test not less than two hours.

SECOND TEST.—Work through the same line of hose, one engine throwing the water into a reservoir while the other pumps from the reservoir—size of reservoir not less than 10,000 gallons. (We name this size so that neither engine can have the advantage by making a fast run for a few minutes, and then claiming a victory, but desire to show what each engine can do in supplying a reservoir for other engines in case of a fire lasting for hours.) Time of test at least two hours.

THIRD TEST.—Work through 200 feet of hose, 1⅛ nozzle. Time, one hour or more.

We further agree to work on any tests you may name in addition to the above, and coming within the line of fire duty, we to be allowed the privilege of naming an equal number.

In all the tests, the coal used to be weighed and the oil measured.

Hoping that we may have the opportunity of a trial with you, in the city of Titusville or any place you may name, we are

Yours very respectfully,
CLAPP & JONES MANF'G CO.

Artificial Stone and Pavements.

We have just received a valuable private letter from a prominent architect residing in Clifton, near Bristol, England, relative to the manufacture of artificial stone, as practiced in that country, and how asphalt is applied for pavements. He says, "Ransom's process is not in any case to be depended upon for manufacturing artificial stone. During the past ten years Mr. Ransom has been trying to convince people that liquid glass can be practically and economically used for that purpose, but it has over and over again been proved that he is wrong. French Beton is nothing but concrete. Cement concrete in England is taking the place of stone, because it is cheap. The theory of making concrete is to obtain a cement which will bind a number of hard particles together, and thus make one solid mass. Lime concrete is young at one hundred years of age, that is to say that it takes a great many years to harden. Portland cement concrete is hard in a fortnight, and full set in two years. For lime concrete mix one part of the best fresh ground brown lime with two parts sharp sakes or sharp river sand, two parts of broken clinkers or gravel, that will pass through a one inch ring, and two parts of broken hard stones, tiles or pottery, to pass through a two inch ring. For cement concrete mix one part of Portland cement to the same proportion as mentioned above, only that all the materials are to pass through an inch ring. The above description seems simple enough, and yet concrete will fail unless great care is bestowed upon the work, and the very greatest care taken, in the selection of a good cementing material. For lime concrete, all that is required is a slightly hydraulic lime ground and put in bags, but tested. For cement concrete all the bags or barrels of the Portland cement must be tested in the following manner: A brick is formed of the pure cement, and placed in water to set, and after seven days it is taken out and subjected to a strain of 500 pounds to the square inch in a testing machine. These testing machines are made by Adie, optician, London, and the cost £41 sterling. With a cement that will pass this test, you can safely build. Building in blocks has been tried, but will not pay so well as building with machines constructed for the purpose, so that even at concrete is not rammed. Of course the smaller the quantity of cement used, the cheaper will be the work, and by very careful selection it is possible to build with one part of cement to ten parts of other materials. It is not at first advisable, however, to use more than five parts to one. Another thing to avoid is dust or too fine particles. All the grains mixed with the cement should be larger than the cement grains, otherwise the lime, or cement, is what is technically called killed. The cement concrete should be used as rapidly as possible and not be disturbed afterwards. The material must be properly and rapidly mixed and immediately placed into its trench. If it is required to finish the outside of houses, then stucco them on with the same cement, using one part of pure cement to two parts of clean, sharp river sand, and after a year or two repair any cracks in the stucco and paint over. For pavements, asphalt is the best thing in the world, both for foot and heavy traffic, and it is almost universally used now in England for such purposes. In Clifton we have hardly anything else but bastard asphalt for foot pavements, made from common pitch boiled until the water is expelled, and then mixed with unslacked ground lime."

We furnish the above practical information, as it may be considered reliable, and it will undoubtedly prove useful both to builders in this country and all those contemplating the erection of houses or putting down sidewalks or street pavements.

For the Herald.

MY KATE.

My Kate was an angel, at least so I thought;
Whatever she wanted I cheerfully bought.
I loved her sincerely, and could not do less
When she smiled, and said "Papa, come buy me this dress."

On the street, O good gracious, my Kate to behold!
You'd suppose that her fingers were made from pure gold;
And the clustering ringlets that hung round her head
Were never disturbed but when going to bed.

Her teeth pearly white, her cheeks like a rose,
Her breath quite as fragrant, with aquiline nose;
With bust so delicious, so rounded and fair,
Made up for occasion, from cotton or hair.

If a man with his money would spend a sum less,
And economy guerdon the ladies in dress,
No doubt but my Kate would have led me the life
The true, the ennobled, the husband, the wife.

Petroleum Cure.

Some weeks ago we discussed petroleum as a remedial agent for the cure of disease, which article has been widely copied and commented on. Persons suffering from lung diseases, find the atmosphere of the Oil Regions highly beneficial. We would however not advise any crude experiments with petroleum, either in the form of a beverage, or an external bath, excepting under the advice of a physician. It is a well known physiological fact that all nature is full of remedial agents, and that the mineral and vegetable worlds have not been searched in vain for medicinal agents. The sun, the great source of all physical life, has only recently, after millions of years of radiant action, been acknowledged as the great physician, carrying health, strength and life wherever its beams penetrate. Without the daily sun bath man would wither and die, and who knows but this celestial luminary is not a world of petroleum on fire. As we melt and writhe under its torrid and fervent heats of midsummer, we can compare it to nothing in the analogies of our own experience, excepting the great rivers, lakes and oceans of petroleum fires, a feeble image of which we see in oil conflagrations in this region. How do we know that the tremulous waves of luminiferous ether between here and the sun are not acted upon by this agency. The spectroscope discloses the fact to to the astronomer that the sun is made up of the same material of which the earth is composed, and may not the final combustion of the universe, which according to prophecy and in the nature of things ought not to be far distant, be mainly dependent upon the ignition by the Divine fiat of the petroleum liquid, now efulgent in the sun, the moon, and the fixed stars, as well as contained in the strata and crevices of the earth itself. But to leave these etherial speculations, we give the following letter of inquiry from a correspondent, which speaks for itself.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29, 1871.

Editor Morning Herald:

DEAR SIRS: Lately I read an item in one of our city papers, taken from your reliable paper, about the medicinal qualities of Seneca oil or petroleum, that it is a sure cure for bronchitis, consumption, etc.

Having been afflicted with bronchitis for over eighteen months, our doctors not being able to cure me, I would like to try this oil, and would hereby request you to give me some little information, how to use it, externally and internally, either crude or refined.

You would do me and a good more unfortunate patients suffering from the same disease a great favor by giving me this information as soon as possible.

Hoping you will excuse me for molesting you by this, I remain yours very truly,

DANIEL FUESS,
35 Geary street, San Francisco.

In reply to the above we would give the following prescription from one of our most eminent physicians in Titusville.:

Take compound syrup squills 2 ozs.; syrup of ipecac 1 oz.; syrup of the balsam tolu 1 oz; crude oil of not over 40 degs. Beaume, 4 drachms; a tea-spoonful, three times a day, before meals; also, take of alcohol 4 ozs., crude oil 4 drachms, to be used as a gargle night and morning. Cold water (not petroleum) baths to be taken every morning, paying particular attention to bathing the chest and throat. Take horseback exercise every day, if possible, and meat only once a day at dinner time, and live regularly.

This prescription, if persevered in, will relieve and finally entirely cure the patient, as it is a specific remedy for chronic bronchitis.

LITTLE MEN.—By Louisa M. Alcott. Published by Roberts Brother, Boston. For sale at B. N. Hurd's, Titusville.

Miss Alcott is sure that what she writes will be read. She has reached a high place in the literature of fiction. She is a fresh, sparkling, original genius, paints nature and draws character to the life, and her "Old Fashioned Girl" and her "Little Women"—charming stories, with a noble moral purpose in them—have made the public impatient for anything that may drop from her pen, and "Little Men" will be eagerly sought for at all the book stores of the country.

ABORTION AND MURDER IN ERIE.—Sarah Smith, a young girl 25 years of age, died at the residence of Mr. Buchner, in Erie, last Monday, from the effects of malpractice on the part of a Mrs. Burnham, who professes to be a physician and clairvoyant, and who further attempted to procure an abortion on the young woman and killed her. TheEricites are greatly excited in consequence, and Mrs. Burnham has been lodged in jail to await a judicial investigation.

HEBREW WEDDING.—Another Hebrew wedding took place at the Temple, on Franklin street, yesterday. Miss Julia Deutch, daughter of Martin Deutch, merchant tailor in Pleasantville, was married to Joseph Cohn, a clerk of Mr. Deutch. The ceremony was performed by Dr. S. Falk, of Buffalo. The wedding party arrived here about one o'clock in carriages, and returned to Pleasantville about three in the afternoon, where the reception took place.

MAGNIFICENT ITALIAN WORKS OF ART—An elegant collection of Italian marble and alabaster vases and statuary is on exhibition to-day at Rice's auction rooms, No. 23 Franklin street. Sale will commence to-morrow at half-past seven p. m. For particulars see the column of new advertisements.

A TWO-HUNDRED BARREL WELL ON CHURCH RUN—The new Emery well on the Andy J Kerr farm, struck a few days ago, has increased to a steady pumping capacity of two hundred barrels, with very little water. This is considered one of the largest producing wells in the region.

GAS WELLS FOR THE CITY'S USE—Some time since the Common Council directed the proper persons to advertise for proposals for boring a well for gas in the yard of the pumping house of the Buffalo water works. This was done, and the bids received were opened at the office of the Board of Water Commissioners yesterday morning. The following named persons sent in proposals for doing the work: Norman Hauerman, William Bayne, Nelson Coit, J. B. McMaster, M. Sontag, Caldwell & Wilcox and John Gisel. The prices asked by these different parties varied from $3 50 to $7 49 per foot. Owing to the absence from the city of the Hon. C. J. Wells, one of the Board of Commissioners, the award of the contract was postponed indefinitely.—Buffalo Express.

A Brooklyn painter has a sign reading thus: "Putt phor sail, glaziers by the regiment, stop that draught."

A man in Kansas, on whose shoulder a lady laid a lash didn't sue for damages, because it was an eyelash.

Georgetown has a three-legged gosling. Two of the legs are in their proper place, and the third sticks out behind.

Miss Burdett-Coutts has been elevated to the peerage, and will hereafter be known as the Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

A Mr Kettle, of Illinois, has married a Miss Fish. He has made a pretty kettle of fish, as he had another wife living.

Lenders do not take so much interest in the money market as formerly. Because they can't get it, is the explanation.

New York speculators have found that experience, however valuable it may be, is not to be taken as a collateral by many lenders in Wall street.

The New York correspondent of the Times believes in clubs, where young men "have all the advantages of home, with none of its discomforts."

The Mattoon (Ill.) Journal advertises: "Wanted—A good man; one that understands the business thoroughly. Apply—all over the country."

A Princeton, Ill., lady lately applied to a navy official to know how much it would cost her to horsewhip a certain man. The tariff was too high.

A youth who escaped from the reform school at Burlington the other day, so perfected his arrangements that he was able to carry with him over $600.

Somebody has written a book entitled "What shall my son be?" Upon which some one frankly replies: "If the boy is as bad as the book, the chances are that he will be hanged."

They record of John Bishop, of Arizona, that he had killed eleven men, and no one thought much of it, but recently, when he stole a horse, he was seized and hanged without delay.

Jefferson Davis' tongue runs freely. Although he "accepted the situation" of an old woman, when trying to escape capture, he now thinks he shan't accept anything more in the "situation" line.

It is said that a New York gentleman offered the Commune 2,000 francs to be allowed to make the last ascent of the Column Vendome. The Commune, in spite of the state of its finances, refused to consent.

The widow of one of the Englishmen, James Lloyd, murdered by the brigands of Marathon, last year, has received 10,000 livres ($2,000) from the Greek government as indemnification for the loss of her husband.

Letters from General Spinner's party, now in Europe, represent the General as greatly improved. They pass rapidly through Scotland and Ireland, and thence straight to Berlin, to witness the triumphal reception on the 15 h of June.

It is proposed to divide Illinois. It is not yet decided whether Chicago will be in the "Ill" part or in "noise." The fact that she has made a good deal of the latter, and the former has made her what she is, makes it a very difficult matter to decide.

The "new departure is supposed to have been inspired by the lines of Longfellow:

> Lives of great men all remind us,
> We can make our lives sublime,
> And, "departing," leave behind us
> Footprints on the sands of time.

Two clergymen, late editors of the Ministerial Union—a Christian paper which appeared for four consecutive weeks in Chicago—valedictoried as follows: "Chicago is a good place for a religious paper, providing that three pages serve Satan and the other one is mixed."

The St. Louis Dispatch is shocked at the bad manners of some of the boarders it knows of, and proceeds to read them the following little lecture: "Don't say 'pass' the krout, or shove along that hash; well-conducted boarders always say, 'Will you be so kind as to 'escort' the lobscouse hitherward."

is on the ice question again this season, and succeeded in putting up

Seven Hundred Tons of Ice

Not figures, but ice, and intends not to be undersold. Spring ice will be sold for three-fourths to one cent per pound; Creek ice from forty to fifty cents per one hundred pounds. Parties wishing ice by the ton will be supplied at liberal rates. I will deliver ice now at any time that parties desire it. All persons commencing with me the first of the season will be carried through if there is any ice to be had this side of Buffalo. As this is supposed to be a free country, I have taken this method to inform the public that I have the ice. It is now for them to select the man to furnish them. This time of drumming and harassing a man at every point and corner to take ice is an insult to a free man and an outrage to humanity. Office first door east of L. P. Smith's grocery store, and west of the Catholic Church on Spring street.

Orders for ice left at H. A. Hill's boot and shoe store, opposite the American Hotel, will be promptly attended to, if written on the slate furnished there. mch10-tf
